

Girl's Elopement Causes Her to Forfeit $2,000,000 Estate Left Her

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Miss Berly Hedrick, a nineteen-year-old Pittsburg girl of prominent family, are living quietly in this city following an elopement, the police are seeking; the couple. Chief of Police Biggy received a request from Pittsburg authorities to detain them although no charge has been made against them in Pittsburg. The request from Pittsburg has revealed that Miss Hedrick, if she has married there, has forfeited $2,000,000. The property which consisted of bonds of the Borough of Bronx, New York city, was left to her by an aunt with the proviso that the young woman do not approve of Shere. Mrs. Hedrick, has written the police to spare no expense to find her daughter. It is believed that the parents of

'I'LL FOLLOW PATH OF ROOSEVELT,' SAYS TAFT

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT 1944

"I wish I could stop and demonstrate to you of all the public men you know there are very few who have done more in the interest of labor than I have, and I want it understood that I am not flattered. The Government has attempted to deliver over the labor vote to the Democratic party, and has attacked me bitterly and with others has done me injustice, will not deprive me of the interest I feel in labor in its attempt to get to higher things, and give me the utmost pleasure in the result of the election."

"The Republican party in the last few years has passed many statutes in the interests of labor. Under these circumstances I ask you to consider carefully the question whether you wish to put in the Democratic party, with its record and its promises unfulfilled, or the Republican party with its record of things done."

Miss Adah Beamer, When Engagement Is Broken, Seeks Death.

While much is known of Miss Beamer at the hotel, and particularly by A. Brandt, piano player in the Orpheum orchestra, those who have the knowledge refuse to divulge their information, throwing a mysterious haze about the case which is puzzling the police. It is generally admitted that Miss Beamer was infatuated with a young man of this city and that she was engaged to wed him. Three days ago she received a telephone message from her lover, whose identity is withheld, telling her that all was at an end between them. A short time later she received by messenger a check which she had given to him betrothed. Since then she became utterly despondent and admitted that there was nothing more in life for her.

Romantic Story
Brandt tells a romantic story concerning the suicide. He declares that for three years he has been her close friend; that he had been as a father to her and that it was owing to her insistence to marry another in the face of his kindness that the match was finally broken off with the man of her choice, he having taken excep-

THE JUNE

In addition to this THE TRIBUNE will furnish a stereoscopic exhibition of varied natures, showing pictures of interest and timely with the bulletin.

There will also be a band of music stationed at THE TRIBUNE'S headquarters, the best that could be obtained, which will help pass the time away.

Every body is invited to enjoy themselves. The latest returns from Alameda county collected and compiled by THE TRIBUNE'S corps of experts will be a feature of the night. This will be the greatest election offering ever given in Oakland or California by a newspaper.

MANILA, Nov. 2.—A force of constabulary from the town of Iligan, went in pursuit of a band of Moros which has been raiding plantations and causing other depredations in the province of Misamis on Mindanao island, overtook the outlaws, killed the leader and is following the rest of the band. This band has caused much trouble in the province and with its capture it is believed that quiet will be restored in that part of the island.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Alonso Smith, a colored teamster, was arrested at 8 o'clock this morning by Detective Tracy of the Harbor Station and held on suspicion of having stabbed S. Mills, a clerk, at the Jackson street wharf yesterday.

Mills claims that a dispute arose over the delivery of some potatoes and that the negro became enraged and made an assault upon him.

Alameda County Should Be Solid for Capital Removal

Tremendous Advantages Would Follow Change of the Seat of the State's Government.

There is one issue upon which Alameda county must line up with a solid vote tomorrow—the Capital Removal Measure. Its passage means incalculable benefits to this entire community, and no arguments should be necessary to induce every resident of this county to cast his vote in favor of the proposition.

If Alameda county carries off this great prize it means that the eyes of the State will always be turned in this direction. A magnificent, modern capitol building will spring up at Berkeley, and in it the business of the State will be conducted. This will attract a steady stream of visitors from all over California, and means permanent advertising of untold value.

ADVANTAGES THAT WOULD FOLLOW

With the State capital will come a host of business advantages that will benefit every enterprise in the county. The State Fair will be held here, the county will be the natural meeting place for State gatherings, political and otherwise, and as it will become the residence of the Governor and other State officials, will mean a large and desirable increase in our population.

Then there is the Legislature. To Alameda county will be accorded the prestige of being the law-making center. The biennial and special sessions will attract not only the members, but the thousands of employes and visitors incidental to the gatherings. It is impossible to estimate what these conventions, legislative sessions and operations of the State departments will mean to Alameda county financially, but there is no question that the sum will reach into the millions annually.

MEANS PROGRESSION FOR STATE

Apart from these local advantages, to change the capital from Sacramento to Berkeley means a great, progressive stride for the State. The capital should unquestionably be on the main artery of State travel, and here on the bay of San Francisco it will be more accessible to the masses of population than in any other part of California.

CAPITAL REMOVAL WILL CARRY IF ALAMEDA COUNTY WILL CAST A SOLID VOTE FOR IT. This is not a proposition for the politicians, but one that appeals to loyalty and local patriotism. If victorious, every interest in Alameda county will be immediately benefited; every lot will be worth more money; every business enterprise, great or small, will jump in value.

WORKINGMEN SHOULD NOT HESITATE

The workingman will certainly not hesitate, for it means work for him, and lots of it. Neither will the contractor, the teamster, the material man or anyone interested in labor in any form.

Capital Removal appears on the ballot under the heading of "An act to change the seat of government from Sacramento to Berkeley." Look for it the moment you enter the polling booth and vote "Yes"—to do so will be the best and most profitable day's work any Alameda county man ever did for himself.

WORK DONE IN THE SOUTH

The University of California Club of Los Angeles recently passed the following resolution:

"Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 30, 1908.

"WHEREAS, One of the issues to be decided by popular vote next Tuesday is the question of changing the seat of government to Berkeley, and there can be no question that Berkeley is an ideal site for a capital, being within a 10-cent fare of half the people of the State and so situated that it would be easy for citizens, boards of trade and chambers of commerce to appear before committees of the Legislature to advocate good laws and oppose bad ones, and therefore greater publicity will be given to all the acts of the Legislature, thus affording wider opportunity for discussion of proposed legislation; and

"WHEREAS, A great saving in rent and in expenses of officials traveling to and from the present capital would be effected by housing in the new capital at Berkeley the eighteen important commissions now located in San Francisco; and

"WHEREAS, The State law library, if located at Berkeley, would be easily accessible to a majority of the lawyers of the State and to the students of the University of California, where a strong law school has been organized; and the general library (one of the finest in America and now little used) would then be within reach of the masses of the people and utilized by the faculty and students of the State University; and the special library for the blind would then be available to the students in the Institute for the Blind at Berkeley; and

"WHEREAS, If the capital were located in close proximity to the University of California, the Legislature would more fully appreciate the needs of the University and more generously aid in its advancement by appropriate legislation; and

"WHEREAS, We deem it to be for the best interests of the State at large, and also advantageous to the University of California, that the seat of government be changed to Berkeley; therefore be it

"RESOLVED, That we, the executive committee of the University of California Club of Los Angeles, hereby recommend the adoption of the enactment to change the seat of government of the State from Sacramento to Berkeley.

Young Boy Caught In Act of Burglary

(Special to The Tribune.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Raymond Brannan, a 12-year-old school boy, was arrested this morning by Policeman Horde of the Mission station on complaint of Peter Guiseppe of 628 Guerrero street.
Mr. Guiseppe heard a noise in his basement yesterday afternoon and going downstairs caught the lad, who had broken in by forcing the door, rifling his trunk. Knowing that Brannan belonged in the neighborhood, the man allowed him to go, but when he reported the affair to the police they decided to put the boy out of the way of temptation and he was booked to a public institution.

Tire Factory Is Burned to Ground

(Special to The Tribune.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Damage amounting to $20,000 was sustained this morning when the tire factory and vulcanizing plant of H. W. Bogan, at Larich street and Birch avenue, was almost completely destroyed by fire. The blaze, which was responsible for two alarms, being turned in, was caused by the blowing out of an electric fuse and the flames quickly spread, driving the employees from the place. The saloon owned by Frank Birch, on the corner, was also badly damaged, but the Police Department carpenter, who lives next door, fortunately escaped injury.
The loss is partially covered by insurance.

You! Dyspeptics Read

What an Eminent Medical Man Says Dyspepsia Really Is. Then Gain Hope.

"This affection called dyspepsia is the greatest torment of civil life, and to be considered rather as an unnatural functional difficulty than as a structural disease."
The same authority has classified dyspepsia thus: "The first to be due to relation with other organs, such as the liver, stomach and intestines, which is characterized by a labile action of such a type as the nausea and vomiting caused by irritation of bile, lungs, liver or uterus."
The second form is caused by scanty supply of gastric juice, made evident by slowness of digestion, long retention of food in the stomach, distress for a long time after meals, accompanied by weight and uneasy feelings at pit of stomach, decomposition of food into alimentary canal causing field and foul gases and the appearance of undigested food in the excretions from bowels."
The third and last form of dyspepsia, according to this renowned medical light, is that which accompanies some abnormal quality of the gastric juice, combined with a partial paralysis of the stomach's muscles so that this organ cannot sufficiently mix the food with the digestive fluids.
Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will remedy each condition of stomach afflicted with dyspepsia as above described. These tablets contain digestive agents which act with or without the aid of the stomach, and are composed of ingredients used in these tablets will digest 4000 grains of food, and if necessary will do it in a glass of water. The digestion can be seen by the human eye.
They help the stomach, enrich the blood, revitalize the gastric juices, give strength to the alimentary nerves and glands. WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May Be Sapping Your Life Away—Oakland People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells, and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well.

Mrs. J. E. Wilson, 2023 Cedar street, Berkeley, Cal., says: "I do not know what I would have done had it not been for the relief which I received from Doan's Kidney Pills. I had been suffering from headache and dizziness for months, and no matter what I did I could not get relief. I would get up in the morning feeling so weak and tired that it was an effort to do my housework. I felt miserable all the time, would have headache and dizzy spells until I was almost distracted. My kidneys were also disordered and caused me much annoyance. At times I would have sharp twinges of rheumatism in my back and limbs. I was finally advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and as they were highly recommended by people whom I knew, I decided to try them. The result was marvelous, for in less than two weeks I was feeling like a new woman. The pains in my back and hips have nearly disappeared and my kidneys now act in their natural manner. I can now recommend a remedy of such sterling worth as Doan's Kidney Pills. It is sold by all dealers for 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other."

MRS. HAINS' SAYS LETTERS WERE FORGED

Used Against Her to Create a Public Opinion in Favor of Men Accused of Murder.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The publication of extracts from letters purporting to have been written by Mrs. C. H. Hains to her husband, Captain Peter C. Hains, has elicited a declaration from Mrs. Hains that Captain Hains and his brother, T. J. Hains, had been seeking to blacken her character "in their attempt to save their own lives." Mrs. Hains in her statement published today asserts that the obvious reason for the attack is that they were the only way in which the Hains brothers could justify themselves before the public and "manufacture public sympathy in the capital in which they are to be tried, is to be drawn."

Mrs. Hains alludes to the letters as having been forged and garbled, and declared that the letters were suggested by the letters are false.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Affidavits were today presented by counsel for the Hains brothers, charged with the killing of William E. Smith, to sustain a motion for the postponement of the impending trial. The documents contained declarations of expert witnesses, stating that Captain Hains was not in fit mental condition. Judge Aspinall granted a postponement of a week.

CALIFORNIA IS FOR TAFT

ELECTION OF SENATOR PERKINS FULLY ASSURED

Gen. Stone Claims State for Republicans by 45,000 Majority—Democrats Claim it by 20,000 Majority.

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Expert opinion leaves California in the Republican column as regards the national election, but it is difficult to strike a medium between the 20,000 previously claimed by the Democrats and the 45,000 that General Stone claims Taft in his forecast in several of the larger cities local contests are engaging a major share of attention and national affairs are regarded with something approaching apathy. PERKINS IS SURE.
It is expected that the Democratic majority in the State Legislature will be straggled to some extent, but not sufficiently to affect the election of a United States Senator to succeed George C. Perkins. Democrats have their strongest hopes of breaking the solid Republican Congressional delegation from the State on the campaigns waged against Julius Kahn in the Fourth and E. A. Hayes in the Fifth districts. The Republicans claim a victory for both.

THE LABOR VOTE.
It is conceded that the labor element will cut a very considerable figure in the result, but in California, as elsewhere in the country, a majority of the workingmen is claimed by both Democrats and Republicans. The State will vote upon the question of electing Senators by a direct vote of the people.

CAPITAL REMOVAL SHOULD BE GIVEN SOLID SUPPORT OF ALAMEDA COUNTY VOTERS

A Great Opportunity to Every Merchant, Business Man and Alameda Co. Citizens

MANY REASONS FOR NEW CENTER OF GOVERNMENT

Economy to State and People--Assurance of Better Legislation--Convenience to Public--Library for Masses

Moving the capital to Berkeley will result in a great saving of money to the State, as approximately 90 per cent of all the officials, commissioners and legislators, in traveling to Sacramento first pass through Berkeley, thus being required to pay additional fare to reach Sacramento. Eighteen important commissioners are located in San Francisco; these have constant business with State officials located at Sacramento. Either the commissioners or the officers are constantly on the road between San Francisco and Sacramento for consultation or other reasons. This is a waste of money as well as waste of time of the State officials.

Prevent Waste of Time and Money

If located at Berkeley, the capital will be within a ten-cent fare of almost one-half the population of the State. The great majority of the people of California, in order to reach Sacramento, first pass through Berkeley. The waste of time and money of the people of the State, caused by the present location of the Capital, will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually.

Legislation Would Be Improved

With the Capital at Berkeley, much better legislation would result, because the nearness of Berkeley to the center of population would render it easy for citizens, boards of trade and chambers of commerce to appear before committees of the Legislature to advocate good laws and oppose bad ones. At the present time only an insignificant number of people can afford to spend the time or money necessary for this purpose. Moreover, greater publicity would be given to all acts of the Legislature, thus affording wider opportunity for discussion of proposed legislation.

Law Library Made Available

The State Law Library is the finest of its kind west of Chicago. It is now impracticable for any but the lawyers and judges of Sacramento to make use of this collection. With this library located at Berkeley, it would be available for the law students of the University. It would be within a half-hour of practically half of the lawyers of the State; it could be used by the Supreme and Appellate Courts; and would be accessible to the judges and lawyers of the interior, who make frequent trips to San Francisco.

State Library in Reach of Masses

The State Library at Sacramento, one of the finest in America, is of little use where now situated. If located at Berkeley, it would be within the reach of the masses of the people; it would be available for the students and professors of the University, and for the large number of teachers in the public schools who congregate in Berkeley in the summer to attend the University Summer School.

Mutual Benefit

It would benefit both the State University and the Legislature. The Legislature could see and realize more clearly the needs of the University and the presence of the University with its intellectual surroundings would be of advantage to the Legislature, to the State officials and consequently to the State.

Better Location

The Capitol is now located where few people ever see it. If a noble Capitol were constructed at Berkeley, overlooking the Golden Gate, it would be visible from the homes of a vast population; it could be seen and visited without inconvenience by the people of the southern and the northern portions of the State upon their frequent trips to the bay region; it would be in sight of every tourist visiting San Francisco. This would create civic pride, and better the standard of citizenship, and at the same time would be of untold advertising value to the State.

Near Business and Population Center

Not only economy and convenience but good business efficiency dictate that the various branches of the State government, the State commissions, and the Legislature, be located as conveniently together and as near the business center of the State and the center of population as possible.

New Capitol Is Inevitable

The present Capitol is inadequate in size and not modern in construction. In the past few years three hundred and twenty thousand dollars have been spent in repairing it. A large appropriation is now needed to finish these repairs. The present charge for maintenance and repairs would pay the interest and sinking fund on an amount sufficient to build a new building. Since a new building must be built, it will be economy to build now, and save further useless expenditure on the present structure.

No Expense to Small Tax Payers

This change can probably be accomplished without the expenditure of a single cent by the ordinary taxpayer. The new Constitutional amendment (No. 1), with regard to taxation which passed the Legislature almost

COST NOTHING OR TRIFLING

Professor Carl C. Plehn, of the Department of Economics of the University of California, Secretary of the State Commission on Revenue and Taxation, has prepared a preliminary estimate of the effect which the tax amendment would have had if it had been in force this year. This estimate shows conclusively that the tax on public service corporations will produce sufficient revenues for all State purposes, and in addition will leave a large surplus.

This surplus will be ample to cover the cost of the new capitol, and will be available as rapidly as it can be properly expended. The result will be that the corporations will pay for the State's new capitol, and that not one dollar of its cost will come from the pockets of the farmer and small taxpayer.

If by any chance the Plehn tax amendment should fail to carry, the cost of a new capitol building to the individual taxpayer will be insignificant. A tax of three cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property will provide money as rapidly as it will be needed.

Even if a new capitol cost five million of dollars, it would only cost the man who pays taxes on one thousand dollars approximately THIRTY CENTS a year for eight years. In view of the enormous benefits that will be derived from the change this trifling cost is not worthy of serious consideration.

unanimously, is to be voted upon and will undoubtedly be carried at the coming election. This new scheme provides that all State funds shall be raised by a tax upon the railroads and other corporations of the State. Professor Plehn, the author of the bill, has estimated that this system will provide a large and constantly increasing surplus annually over ordinary expenditures. Even if five million dollars were expended upon the new capitol, it would readily be realized in this manner during the time necessary to construct the building. The result will be that a magnificent new capitol will be secured in a location the most central, convenient and economical possible, and that not one dollar of the cost of this capitol will come from the pockets of the farmer or the small taxpayer.

UNIVERSITY AND LEGISLATURE GAIN BY LOCATION IN SAME COMMUNITY

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

MADISON

May 25, 1908

My Dear Sir:

In reference to the point you raise concerning the location of the capital of a state and the university in one city, I have to say that our experience in Wisconsin is all in one direction, namely, in favor of the location in the same city.

First and most important: By the location in the same city of the capital and the university, the scientific men of the university may become the official advisers of the state. At Wisconsin more than a score of professors are acting in various capacities as advisers, upon state commissions, doing statistical work for the tax commission, valuing public utilities, assisting in the forming of legislation, etc., etc. In this connection we have at Wisconsin a legislative reference library, the head of which is also a lecturer in the university, so that his department is a seminary for students of political science. The advantages to the department of political economy in having the capital at the university town are very great indeed.

Another great advantage in the arrangement is that the legislature may become personally familiar with the University and its various departments, and thus form an intelligent judgment as to the work which the university is doing for the state.

As to the possible dangers suggested by you, I have to say that our experience here gives no ground for fear.

Very truly yours,

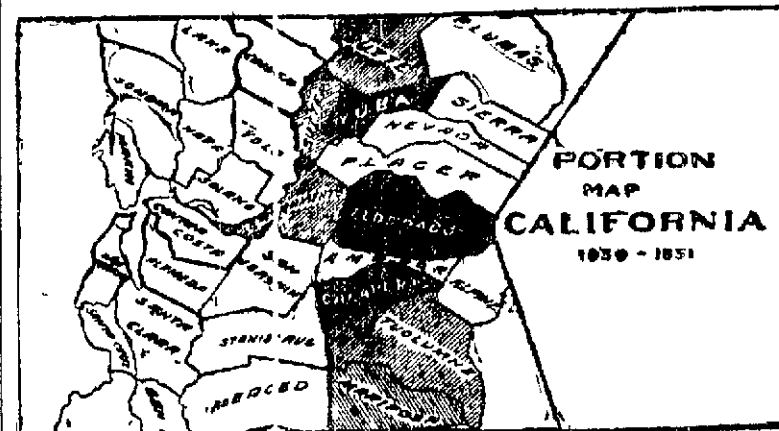

Charles D. Van Dine

How to Vote for Capital Removal

An Act to change the seat of government of the State of California from the City of Sacramento to the Town of Berkeley	Yes	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
	No	<input type="checkbox"/>

SHIFTING CENTERS OF FIFTY YEARS

Population Centers in 1851, When Sacramento Was Selected.

The three counties printed black in the upper map were, in 1860, according to the United States Census, the most populous counties of California. They had 46,614 residents, or more than half of the total of the state, which was reported as 92,597. The five lightly shaded counties together with the three named contained 75,429 people, or over four-fifths of 92,597.

The interests of California were then centered in her mines. Agriculture was of secondary importance. Nearly all mercantile pursuits had relation to mining.

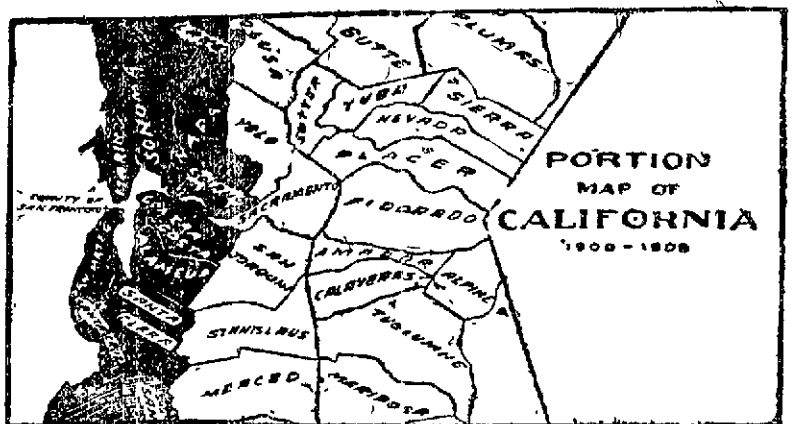

Sacramento was selected as the seat of government in the early '50's, in order that the capital should be near the masses. Should not the same argument prevail today, especially when the extraordinary changes in California's population centers, industries and commercial channels are considered?

Today, according to the estimate of Dr. N. K. Foster, Secretary of the State Board of Health, there are more than one million people in the counties bordering on San Francisco Bay. These counties are printed in black in the lower map. This population is over half of that of the whole state. Nine-tenths of these million residents are in counties that either border on Alameda county or are a few miles distant across the bay.

The population has shifted west. The mining counties that once controlled the state have scarcely grown. San Francisco Bay has become a center of world interest.

California requires a capitol suitable to the conditions of today, not one chosen to suit conditions that have passed away.

Population of One Million Today Around the Bay

To Parents

Every voter who is the head of a family should remember that the capitol removal question concerns the future of his children. It is a question whether or not better laws shall be made for his sons and daughters and whether California's greatest educational institution should receive the State aid of which it is in need.

The University of Texas
President's Office
Austin

Dear Sir:

In my judgment the presence of the State University in Austin has added very much to the intellectual, social and moral advancement of the city. I think it is generally conceded that Austin, in these particulars, enjoys the superiority of any other city in Texas. Public men who have returned to Austin after a number of years' absence state to me that they have noted a marked change for the better, which they attribute to the University.

While I cannot discover that the University exercises any direct elevating influence upon the members of the Legislature during their residence in Austin, I am of the opinion that the presence of the University created a better environment here and that, therefore, the University indirectly affects the Legislators.

The presence of the Legislature in Austin has certainly not exercised any unfavorable influence over the student body. Many distinguished men come to the Capital during the session of the Legislature; many able men come to the Legislature as members. There is no question but that the presence of the Legislature in Austin gives the students many opportunities to study the operations of government. I should strongly advocate bringing the University and the Legislature into the same community wherever it is practicable. There are many advantages and no disadvantages.

Sincerely yours,

A. J. Austin

Why Berkeley Should Be the State Capital

THE proposition for the removal of the seat of government from Sacramento to Berkeley must be settled by the people at the polls tomorrow. It is undeniably a question of the deepest interest and gravest importance to the State at large. And the majority of the population of the State is so directly concerned in its success that every voter should take especial pains tomorrow to see that his ballot is marked affirmatively.

The measure passed the Legislature at its last session by a total vote of both houses of 88 ayes against 28 noes, one of the most decisive majorities ever accorded a debatable measure in the history of California, and the Governor, without any hesitation, gave it his prompt approval.

The reasons which prompted the people in 1854 to remove the capital from Benicia to Sacramento are stronger today for the transfer of the seat of State Government to Berkeley. Fifty-four years ago Sacramento was located in the center of the State's population and the scene of its chief industrial activities and its selection as the capital was for the greater convenience of the greater number. At that time gold-mining was the chief industry in California and the bulk of the population was engaged directly or indirectly in that pursuit, and the gold-bearing counties clustered around Sacramento and it occupied a commanding position on the chief highway of internal commerce. Today conditions are entirely changed. Gold-mining has long ceased to be the State's chief industry. Other interests of greater magnitude have been developed, attracting to them a vastly larger population and shifting the latter away from Sacramento. At the present time, of the two millions constituting the State's population; the great majority are located in the bay counties and Berkeley is the geographical center of the territory thus occupied. And the industrial and commercial growth of California is such that Berkeley must ever continue to occupy that position in its relations to the population. Of the present larger centers of population Sacramento has tributary to it today only eighteen counties containing not over 190,000 inhabitants. To the rest of the people of the State its location as the seat of government is a source of inconvenience and constant expense.

One of the strongest proofs that the State capital is not at present properly located is shown by the fact that eighteen important State commissions, including the Railroad and Bank Commissions and the office of the Supreme Court Clerk are established in San Francisco instead of at Sacramento, where, as the seat of State Government, they should be, but which public necessity and convenience has forced to be transferred where the bulk of the population can be better accommodated. It goes without saying that the business of the State should be transacted wholly at the seat of government and the fact that a large part of it is now of necessity transacted remotely from the capital in the center of the State's population is an overpowering argument in favor of the proposed change to Berkeley, where the generous offer of a forty-acre site for a capitol building, matchless in its location and surroundings, accessible to every one by cheap rapid transit means of communication, has been made to the State. With Berkeley as the seat of government, every branch of the State Government could be housed on the spot instead of being scattered as they are at present.

The prospective cost of a new capitol building which the change will entail should be no bar to any voter favoring the proposition. The present capitol at Sacramento is constantly a source of great expense to the State to maintain in repair. It is, moreover, totally out of date and in no sense in accord with modern ideas of architecture. It has been conclusively demonstrated, also, by Professor Plehn that if Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 1, separating the sources of state and city and county revenues is adopted, which should be done, the State's revenues from the public service corporations will not only be ample to pay all the cost of the maintenance of the State Government, but will leave an annual surplus large enough to erect a new capitol without taxing the people at large one dollar for the purpose. The burden of providing a new building for the use of the State will, through the adoption of this constitutional amendment, be shifted to the public service corporations doing business in the State.

Some of the more important of the State's institutions are already located at Berkeley, notably the State University and the institution for the deaf, dumb and blind. With the removal of the capitol to Berkeley, the State Library with its invaluable collection of books would be made accessible to the major part of the State's population and to its leading institutions of learning. This great library, which is one of the finest in the United States, is now of little service to the people for the simple reason that it is practically inaccessible to them.

It must be apparent to every intelligent voter from the foregoing that the seat of State Government should be at once removed to Berkeley. Let him act accordingly at the ballot box tomorrow.

The Duty of Voters.

The stability of a free government rests upon the moral integrity of its citizens. Our republic is secure so long as the electors, as a body, cast their ballots in accordance with their conscientious convictions. As long as reason and conscience guide the voters in exercising the franchise the institutions which lie at the base of popular government cannot be either overthrown or subverted. Honor and patriotism, enlightened by intelligence and education, must inevitably lead the nation to higher ground in the march of human progress despite the mistakes inseparable from human judgment and any work of human policy.

The voter is doing his full duty as a citizen, however, and is as near right as it is possible to be, when he casts his ballot for the men and policies his honest judgment tells him will better serve the interests of the people at large, when he places the welfare of the nation above personal and minor considerations and deals candidly with his conscience. That is what every man should strive to do tomorrow.

It is an inspiring thing to see millions of men going to the polls with the set determination to vote purely as patriots. The few who vote for the price of corruption or from sordid personal reasons do not count. It is the grand army of men who vote their honest sentiments that rules this country. Long may they continue to rule it. This government will survive for unnumbered years, giving a greater measure of justice and security to its citizens as popular intelligence rises, unless the electorate should become venal or cowardly, or be governed by considerations other than patriotic impulse and honest conviction.

Every man should have convictions, every man should feel an interest in the election of a President and the men who are to make the laws, every man should strive to inform himself in regard to pending issues and go to the polls resolved to do his duty to his country and his fellow men. The soldier who deserts, or runs away, or lies down while others do the fighting is justly regarded as a poltroon and a traitor. Is not the voter who shirks his obligations as a citizen, takes no interest in the result of elections, takes no pains to inform himself as to the merits of opposing candidates and policies, and permits himself to be influenced by others or by petty personal motives, equally false to his country and his duty? In a free country an honest government rests solely upon the honest convictions of the people honestly and fearlessly expressed. It is impossible to ground righteous and stable government on the purchase or intimidation of voters. The man who permits himself to be bought or intimidated, or persuaded against his judgment to vote for the wrong thing or the wrong man is false to himself, to his country and to posterity. Let us hope there will be few such. A certain number of mistakes cannot be avoided, but it is always possible to avoid the crime of selling the franchise and what is almost as criminal, exercising the franchise without conviction or patriotic purpose.

Freemen can only retain their liberties by voting as freemen with knowledge and intent to serve mankind and the cause of good government.

Judge Henry A. Melvin should receive a majority vote at the election tomorrow for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court second to none on the Republican ticket. That majority should be assured to him as a fitting recognition of the splendid record he made during the seven years he served on the bench of the Superior Court in this county.

Unless all signs are very misleading, the Third Congressional district will give Joseph R. Knowland a larger majority to return him to Congress for another term than was ever before accorded to any candidate for the place.

California cannot afford to trust any Democratic Representative to Congress with the important duty of revising the tariff which now effectively protects her products and industries.

A straight vote cast for Taft and Sherman tomorrow will be for the resumption of that national prosperity which has always followed the triumph of the Republican ticket at the polls.

It is now up to the voters to settle the burning question of the day before the nation. Argument by candidates and their friends will be longer of no avail.

The Last Appeal.

We have reached the close of the most extraordinary Presidential campaign the country has ever witnessed. Fewer of those artificial agencies which have been conspicuous in previous political struggles to influence the electorate have been in evidence than ever before. There has been on the Western side of the continent, particularly, a total absence of those picturesque public parades, torch light processions, pyrotechnic displays and the burning of red lights and bonfires, which have been characteristic of former partisan contests for Presidential control. And, with the exception of the last two weeks of the campaign, the "spellbinder" has been kept in the background and has been given little opportunity to display his eloquence and sway the popular judgment through the emotions it has been relied upon to excite. It has thus been, in a large measure, a recognition of the fact that the people generally have been educated up to a point where they do their own thinking, form their own opinions and trust more to their individual judgment as to the manner in which they will vote on the candidates and the measures they represent than has been conceded by either party struggling for supremacy in any previous campaign.

Even the press has done less campaigning this year than was done for any Presidential election in the past. It has been taken for granted largely that the great majority of the voters of the country are well enough acquainted and sufficiently well satisfied with the magnificent record which the Republican party has made in national development and progress to be perfectly content to let well enough alone and continue to entrust the management of national affairs to it for another term, to carry out to their natural conclusion those great policies for the betterment of the country at large and the advancement of its foreign relations which it inducted and which are now approaching maturity. If there be any who are still averring, THE TRIBUNE tonight makes the last appeal it is possible for it to make to them to cast the influence of their votes at the ballot box tomorrow for those candidates who represent the party of progress, as shown by its past unassailable record. That record constitutes the most brilliant and progressive pages in American history. The principles and policies which the Republican party has formulated and put into effect have elevated it to a plane of prosperity unequalled not only in its own history, but in the history of every other civilized nation in modern times on the face of the earth. This is the indisputable fact. Why then should those principles and policies be abandoned for visionary theories and experiments in national government, the outcome of which no one can foretell? This is the question which the electorate of the country will have to decide for themselves at the ballot box tomorrow. There ought to be but one answer to it, and that expressed in a vote for Taft and Sherman.

Western Pacific Enters Central Oakland.

On Saturday afternoon the first working train of the Western Pacific Railroad Company crossed the trestle spanning the north arm of the estuary and thus entered the central part of Oakland. The event occurred without any public display and without any popular demonstration, and yet it was one fraught with the greatest importance to the future of this city, for it marks the beginning of the closing act in a great industrial and commercial drama whose influence can be at present but imperfectly conceived.

The construction gangs of the corporation are now closing up the unfinished links between tide water and the heart of the Sierras, and in two months more it will in all probability be open to regular traffic, adding another source of commercial wealth and opening new fields of industrial activity in which this community will be the direct beneficiary.

The birth of the new year will doubtless witness the opening of a new transbay ferry, thus increasing the facilities of communication between Oakland and San Francisco. This does not mean the impairment or the destruction of any means of communication or of any interest in which the two cities most concerned are interested, but, to the contrary, the upbuilding of both and of those interests in which both are vitally affected. But Oakland ought and doubtless will be the greatest beneficiary, for the new line traverses a great industrial district on the south side which has grown marvelously during the past two years and which promises henceforth to progress more rapidly than ever before under the influence of competitive transportation by land and proximity to navigable water. A new agent to Oakland's commercial development is now in actual occupation and a new influence is actively at work in the enhancement of its realty values, which the shrewd operator in real estate is not apt to overlook.

Cast your vote early and then your mind and conscience will rest easy throughout the day that you have performed the most sacred civic duty imposed upon you through the privilege of citizenship.

The agony will be at an end at the close of the polls tomorrow. There will be nothing left save the shouting for the victors—Taft and Sherman—whose election is virtually assured.

Alameda should distinguish itself tomorrow by rolling up a Republican majority that will restore it to its former position as the banner Republican county in the State.

California should be true to herself tomorrow by sending to Congress a solid Republican delegation to properly protect her varied interests.

What Judge Lindsey Says of Judge Frank J. Murasky

World renowned for his work in the juvenile court of Denver and one of the foremost judges of the United States.

DENVER, COLO., Oct. 1, 1908.
Editor of the San Francisco Bulletin: My Dear Sir: I have just learned that Judge Frank J. Murasky is a candidate for justice of the Supreme Court of California. I cannot refrain from expressing my earnest hope that Judge Murasky will be elected, even though I am not a resident of California.

I am fully aware of his interest in good government everywhere, and I am sure that his act would add more to that cause than the election of Judge Murasky. The long personal acquaintance with the judge and a fairly intimate knowledge of his splendid work in behalf of the childhood of California should convince me of his broad tolerance, his sympathy and deep sense of justice. An experience like that referred to, added to splendid legal attainments, and one of the noblest characters it has ever been my good fortune to know, would seem to make his success certain, as I certainly hope will be the result.

I never knew a man who had done so much and who possessed so many attainments, who was so genuinely and sincerely modest as Judge Murasky. His modesty on his part should not permit his friends to be backward in expressing his virtues and, as one of them, I take the liberty, I hope without being intrusive, to write you this letter of appreciation of a dear friend and splendid citizen.

(Sincerely)
BEN E. LINDSEY.
Judge Lindsey and Judge Murasky have been friends for years, having first drawn together by their common interest in the juvenile court work. Since his nomination Judge Murasky has declined many invitations before clubs and societies on the work of the juvenile court, which in addition to his regular duties as Superior Judge, a fine sentiment, in the professional politician, is the cause of this reticence, for he fear would be making political capital of this work.

Cigarette Papers Stop Knife Thrust and Save Youth's Life

CENTRALIA, Mo., Nov. 2.—A package of cigarette paper saved the life last night of Clyde Younger, a young man employed by a grocery house. Younger was attacked by a burglar with a long knife. A murderous thrust cut its way through the coat, vest and a book of cigarette papers and inflicted a slight wound. The book was heavy cardboard.

ITALIAN WORKINGMAN MURDERED IN TUNNEL

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—In one of the galleries connecting the tubes of the Pennsylvania Railway tunnel in East Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets was found yesterday the half nude body of an Italian workingman who, police investigation shows, was murdered after a desperate resistance. Except that he was known to his fellow workmen as "Jim" and that he had been saving money with which to return soon to Italy, nothing is known of him.

The motive for the crime was robbery and the man's throat was cut by his murderers. His clothing was torn off by them in efforts to find if money was secreted in it, but they overlooked several hundred dollars hidden in a pocket.

TO THE WIFE

Just reason with "hubby" in a low, sweet tone:
"Tonight, my dear, we may all stay at home.
I know in the past you've always stayed late
To welcome the votes for your choice candidate,
And yell with your party till you can't use your voice,
And bet your last dime on the man of your choice—
While I've had to stay with the children alone.
But now the returns we can get over the phone;
They'll report all the votes—for whom and from where—
While you smoke at home in your big rocking chair.
Though the man that you vote for may lose in the fight
We know that returns over this phone will be right.
If I was Republican, or if Democratic,
I'd pick a sure winner and vote 'AUTOMATIC.'"

TO THE HUSBAND

To make your wife happy on next "voting day"
Just read these directions and then to her say:
"From The Home Telephone we'll be able to learn
The correct and the latest election returns.
So I'll not go down town and 'tank up with the boys,'
Where I'd get cold and tired and hear nothing but noise;
And the man that we bet on may lose—we can't tell;
But losers and winners the boys feel like —well,
They never do feel like coming straight home,
They forget about wife who's waiting alone,
No matter who wins, they will celebrate;
That means getting home so terrible late.
So I'll stay home with you—and 'out out the booze'—
'Cause our new 'AUTOMATIC' will give us the news."
